Charles F. Murphy, was more sphinx like than ever over the result to-night The older Democratic Senators were recalling after the caucus had adjourned the stiff fights of the Republicans in the old Conkling-Platt days to bring about the reelection of Conkling and Platt and still later the great fight which resulted in the election of Frank Hiscock. Mr Sheehan, however, expressed the greatest satisfaction with the result to-night

There was genuine disappointment to-night on the part of hundreds of men and women Democrats who came to Albany because a Democratic manaccment ordered them out of the cus was hold. These men and women Democrats had come from all parts of the State to witness the selection of the first Democratic United States Senator in eighteen years, when Edward Murphy, Jr., of Troy was Senator.

It was difficult to learn just who was responsible for this order, but it was asserted that Senator Wagner, Democratic leader of the Senata; Speaker Frisbie of the Assembly and Alfred E. Smith, leader of the Democratic majority in the Assembly, were secondarily responsible for the programme.

There has never been a closed caucus for United States Senator in the State so far as Senator Grady and many others familiar with the history of the State can recall. Even the great joint caucuses of the Conklin-Platt days of forty years ago and all of the joint caucuses since have been open and fully attended by visitors from all over the State. Many Democratic

Gov. Dix in due time reached the Executive Chamber, and he hadn't been there long before Charles F. Murphy appeared, and soon came William Church Osborn. It was quickly apparent that Thomas Mott Osborne had misinterpreted Gov. Dix's come means by which they could avoid attending the joint caucus to select the United States Senator, Senator Roosevelt and other friends of Mr. Shepard believed that no such course should be taken without the gravest deliberation. Senator Neither Gov. Dix nor Women Church Osborn nor Mr. Murphy believed that no such course should be taken without the gravest deliberation. Senator Murtagh said:

Thomas Mott Osborne, the leading advocate of Edward M. Shepard's selection as United States Senator, read Gov Dix's statement, which had been prepared in the presence of William Church Osborn. Mr. Osborne was still convinced that the Governor's statement meant that all Democratic legislators opposed to Mr. Sheehan could refrain from participating in the joint caucus. Mr. Osborne was positive that he was correct in his interpretation of the Govissued the following statement:

The protests borne's statement for publication he against the infamous caucus system have of the Governor absolves every member of the Legislature from participation in the H. P. Coats.

Mr. Osborne handed out his statement for publication and he distributed copies among the Democratic Senators and Assemblymen who are adherents of Mr. Shepard. A number of these Senators Assemblymen decided to have a conference at the Hotel Hampton. Senator Roosevelt was perhaps the leader in this conference. Those at the Hampton Hotel conference were Senators Franklin D. Roosevelt, John Godfrey Saxe, Henry W. Pollock, I. Harvey Ferris, John Murtagh, Robert H. Gittins, Frank M Loomis and George B. Burd; Assemblymen lelson L. Drummond, Oliver G. La Reau, Edmund R. Terry, Harold J. Friedman William M. Martin, Charles W. Cosad and Ferdinand A. Hoyt. It should be said that a number of the foregoing Senators and Assemblymen who participated in the Hotel Hampton conference were not really for Mr. Shepard and yet were opposed to Mr. Sheehan. One or two Sheehan men decided to enter the conference for the purpose of ascertaining what was going on. While no chairman was selected for the conference, Senator Roosevelt, Senator Ferris, Senator Gittins hustling. Mr. Murphy and Mr. Cohalan and Senator Loomis were the chief spokes men. Gov. Assemblyman Terry advocated that all present should go to the caucus. At this point Assemblyman Drummond notified the conference that Thomas Mott Osborne had arrived, and immediately Mr. Osborne was invited to come in and join the band. Mr. Osborne spoke for nearly an hour. He recounted his visit with Gov. Dix last night, at which William Church Osborn was present, and Mr. Church Osborn was present, and Mr. Osborne wound up by declaring that he believed himself fully justified in putting issue for publication and which would clearly determine once for all his attitude. At 1 o'clock this afternoon the Governor and Mr. Osborn went deliberately and slowly over the statement which the Governor had prepared. And he then must be continued in joint session.

The official signed statement given out by those who did not attend the caucus is as follows, which is considered a pledge of the signers to maintain their opposition. The undersigned Senators and Assemblymen, having at heart the welfare of the Democratic party in both State and nation and believing as representatives of the people of the State of New York that the people should know the manner in which the statute declares that the people should know the manner in which the statute declares that the people should know the manner in which the statute declares that the people should know the manner in which the statute declares that the people should know the manner in which the statute declares that the people should know the manner in which the statute declares that the people strong the statute declares that the people should know the manner in which the diovernor had prepared.
